

Leann Barden holds a Master's Degree in Communication Sciences and Disorders from Worcester State College. She has been working in the field of speech-language pathology since 2005, primarily with children. Leann is co-owner of the practice and currently works as an interventionist and Clinic Coordinator. In addition to CSHS, Leann has worked for the SEEM Collaborative providing speech, language and auditory intervention to children who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing. She has also had previous experience with children birth to 18 years of age who present with delays/disorders of: global development; articulation/phonology; receptive/expressive language; social-language and communication. In her spare time she enjoys outdoor activities with her family.